CONTRIBUTORS

Aminuddin Mustaffa is an associate professor at the Faculty of Law and International Relations, Universiti Sultan Zainal Abidin (UniSZA), Terengganu, Malaysia. He obtained his PhD in Law from Lancaster University, United Kingdom, in 2017. He holds an LL.B (2000) and an LL.B (Shariah) (2001), as well as a Master of Comparative Laws (2009) from the International Islamic University Malaysia (IIUM). He joined UniSZA in 2009 and has been actively involved in teaching, research, and academic administration since then. His research interests include criminal law, juvenile justice, restorative justice and law reform.

Boh Phaik Ean is a senior lecturer at the School of Languages, Literacies and Translation, Universiti Sains Malaysia (USM). Her research focuses primarily on translation history, particularly the historical development of Chinese–Malay translation in Malaysia, with related interests in the sociology of translation and literary translation. Her research examines translators, institutions, publication practices and the sociocultural conditions that have shaped translation activities in Malaysia.

Chong Shin is a professor and research fellow at the Institute of the Malay World and Civilization (ATMA), Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia (UKM). He holds an MA and a PhD in Linguistics, both from UKM. His expertise includes dialectology and sociolinguistics, with a particular focus on Borneo, including Sarawak and East and West Kalimantan. He also conducts research on languages spoken in Peninsular Malaysia and eastern Indonesia.

Della Amrina Yusra is a lecturer in Mathematics Education at Universitas Islam Negeri (UIN) Sulthan Thaha Saifuddin Jambi, Indonesia. Her research covers mathematics education, ethnomathematics, mathematical literacy, learning strategies, and educational inclusion. She examines links between mathematics and culture, as well as educational access and opportunities for Indonesian migrant workers' children in Malaysia and other vulnerable communities.

Goh Sang Seong serves as a professor in the School of Humanities at USM. His scholarly expertise centres on Chinese-Malay translation—specifically its linguistic, cultural, literary and historical dimensions—and the internationalisation of the Malay language.

© Penerbit Universiti Sains Malaysia, 2026. This work is licensed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution (CC BY) (http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/).

Gregory anak Kiyai @ Keai is a senior lecturer in the Visual Arts Programme, Faculty of Creative Arts, Universiti Malaya (UM). He holds a PhD in Arts Management from Universiti Malaysia Sarawak (UNIMAS) and a Master of Arts (History) from Universiti Malaysia Sabah (UMS). His research focuses on the Iban of Sarawak, covering museology, history, Indigenous culture and art, cultural objects and Indigenous epistemology, with particular emphasis on cultural memory and Indigenous decolonisation.

Ho Hui Ling is an associate professor in the Department of History, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, UM. She holds a Master of Arts (MA) and a PhD from UM and specialises in Malaysian history. Her research interests include the history of Emergency era and communist movements in Malaya. She is also interested in ethnic relations and the development of plural societies in Malaysia, as well as various aspects of Sarawak and Sabah's history from the colonial period to the modern era.

Jain Yassin is a senior lecturer and Chair of the Industry Linkage Committee at Universiti Teknologi MARA (UiTM) Sabah. He holds a PhD in Planning and Development Economics from UMS. His expertise includes economics, sustainable development, socioeconomic analysis and policy research. He currently serves as a Board Advisor for All-Party Parliamentary Group Malaysia on Sustainable Development Goals (APPGM-SDG) Sabah Region, contributing to evidence-based policy and sustainable development initiatives. His work focuses on Sabah's socioeconomic development, SDG localisation, poverty reduction, inclusive growth, industry–academia collaboration and community development.

Jamaie Haji Hamil is a senior lecturer in the Political Science Program at the Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, UKM. He obtained his PhD and Master of Arts (MA) from UM. His research focuses on democratisation in Southeast Asia and Malaysia's political dynamics.

Jamaluddin is a lecturer in Islamic Education Management at UIN Sulthan Thaha Saifuddin Jambi, Indonesia. His research focuses on educational leadership, institutional development, quality assurance and educational inclusion. He also studies educational challenges faced by migrant workers' children from Kerinci. His work contributes to effective governance, educational equity and sustainable institutional development.

Jasni Sulong is a lecturer in the Islamic Studies Section, School of Humanities, USM. He holds a PhD, Master of Shariah and Bachelor of Shariah from UM. His research interests include the administration of Islamic laws, Islamic wealth management, faraid, hibah, wasiat, waqf, zakat and Islamic family law. He is also involved in Shariah consultancy, governance and sustainable wealth planning within Islamic legal and institutional frameworks.

Karim Harun is an associate professor at the Centre for Malay Language, Literature and Culture Studies (Bitara Melayu), Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, UKM. He holds a PhD in Linguistics from UKM and an MA in Linguistics from the University of Leeds, United Kingdom. His areas of expertise include the history of linguistics, psycholinguistics and lexicography.

Kenneth Tze Wui Lee is an assistant professor and Deputy Dean (Academic Development and Undergraduate Programmes) in the Faculty of Creative Industries, Universiti Tunku Abdul Rahman (UTAR), Selangor, Malaysia. He holds a PhD in Social Science and a Master of Communication. His research interests lie at the intersection of media and society, with a focus on ethnicity, identity, and minority communities.

Kevin Brendan Kung holds a PhD in Law from UKM. He has seven years of private practice experience in dispute resolution and currently works as in-house legal counsel at a publicly listed company. His research interests include criminal evidence, criminal procedure and the use of detention dogs as evidence in criminal investigations.

Mc Jeanet Lempisik @ Marx currently serves as the Head of the Sabah Region at APPGM-SDG, where she leads a team focused on research and community-based development, particularly in identifying and addressing constituency-level community issues. She holds a Master of Science (Marketing) from UiTM, Sabah Branch. Her research interests include community development, indigenous communities and social science, with a particular focus on understanding community needs and supporting evidence-based interventions for inclusive and sustainable development.

Mohd Khaidir Abdul Wahab is a senior lecturer in the Malay Linguistics Section, School of Humanities, USM. He holds two PhD degrees from UKM and Universiti Pendidikan Sultan Idris (UPSI). His research interests include sociolinguistics, historical and comparative Austronesian linguistics, the history of the Malay language, and the philosophy of language. His research focuses on minority languages in Malaysia and Borneo, language endangerment, language choice, language maintenance and shift, and the historical development of the Malay language.

Mohd Marbawi Taha is a senior lecturer at the Academy of Contemporary Islamic Studies, UiTM, Terengganu. He holds a PhD and a Master of Shariah, and a Bachelor in Islamic studies and Arabic. His research interests include Islamic jurisprudence, Islamic land law, land ownership and administration, and contemporary Shariah issues. He has also contributed to research on Islamic inheritance, land management and the application of Islamic law in Malaysia.

Mohd Nizam Sahad is an associate professor in the Islamic Studies Section, School of Humanities, USM. He holds a PhD and MA from UM. His research interests focus on religion and society, particularly issues related to youth, mosques and Muslim converts. His other academic interests include Islamic creed (aqidah), Islamic preaching (da'wah), Islamic education, Qur'anic exegesis (tafsir) and Islamic thought.

Mohd Syakir Mohd Rosdi is deputy director and lecturer at the Centre for Islamic Development Management Studies, USM. He holds a BA in Usuluddin (Al-Quran and Hadith) from UM, a Master's in Islamic Development Management and a PhD in Islamic Political Economy from USM. His research interests include Islamic Political Economy, Islamic Development Politics, Islamic governance, and the advancement of Islamic-based approaches to contemporary political and development issues.

Muhamad Helmi Md Said is a lecturer at the Faculty of Law, UKM. He earned his Bachelor of Laws in 2006 from IIUM and holds a Master's degree (2008) and a PhD (2017) from the same institution. He specialises in criminal procedure, family justice and transport law.

Muhammad Farris Imadi Fuze is a graduate student in the Department of Linguistics, College of Humanities, Chungnam National University, Daejeon, South Korea. He holds a Master of Philosophy (MPhil) and a Bachelor of Social Sciences, both in Linguistics, from UKM. His research interests include theoretical phonology and morphology, with a particular focus on Proto-Malayic languages.

Muhammad Firdaus Azizan is an administrative and diplomatic officer with more than 20 years' experience in the Malaysian civil service. He holds a PhD and MA from UKM.

Muhammad Imran Haji Ibrahim currently serves as a Senior Assistant Mufti (Istinbat) at the Fatwa Division, Federal Territory Mufti Department. He graduated in Syariah and Islamic Studies from Mu'tah University, Jordan, in 2001, and obtained his Master's degree from USM in 2022. He has experience in mosque development, particularly with Jabatan Kemajuan Islam Malaysia's Takmir programme. His research explores factors influencing youth mosque attendance. He has published articles, journals, books and e-books on youth, takmir, mosque enlivenment, sirah and reform (tajdid).

Muhammad Naim Fakhirin is a senior lecturer in the History Section, School of Humanities, USM. He holds a PhD and MA in History from UM. His research interests include British colonialism, Malayan political history and Southeast Asian political history, with particular focus on colonial administration and political transformation in Malaya, Singapore and Borneo.

Musli is a lecturer in Arabic Language Education at UIN Sulthan Thaha Saifuddin Jambi, Indonesia. His research focuses on Arabic language learning, pedagogy, curriculum development, language proficiency and educational inclusion. He also studies the educational experiences of migrant workers' children from Kerinci. His work promotes effective language teaching, educational equity and inclusive learning practices.

Nazli Ismail Nawang is an associate professor at the Faculty of Law and International Relations, UniSZA. He holds a PhD from the University of Edinburgh, a Master of Comparative Laws, and a Bachelor of Laws from IIUM. His research interests include cyber law, personal data protection, constitutional law and commercial law. He is particularly interested in internet regulation, online defamation, cyberbullying, and balancing freedom of expression with restrictions on online hate speech.

Nazarudin Zainun is an associate professor in the History Section, USM. He holds a PhD and an MA from USM, and a bachelor's degree in Indonesian History from Universitas Indonesia. His research interests include Southeast Asian socioeconomic history, the Indonesian revolution, Indonesian military history, economic depression in Java and Southeast Asian protohistory. He is also interested in the development of Malay civilisation across the Malay Archipelago.

Nazmi Qayyum Hamdan teaches at Maahad Taufiqiah Al Diniah, Behrang Stesen. He holds a PhD in Usuluddin (Islamic Studies) from USM. His research focuses on comparative Semitic religion, mosques, philology and the Malay realm, particularly esotericism in silat (traditional Malay martial arts).

Phaik Kin Cheah is a professor in the Faculty of Arts and Social Science, UTAR. She holds a PhD in Information and Communication Technology from USM. Her research interests focus on education, community engagement, and policing, particularly community-based initiatives and institutions in Malaysia.

Ramalinggam Rajamanickam is a professor at the Faculty of Law, Multimedia University, Malaysia. He holds a PhD in Law from UKM. His expertise includes criminal justice and social justice, including criminal law, evidence law, forensic law, education law, legal language and law reform. He has published over 300 scholarly and professional works. He is actively involved in legal research, law reform and policy development in Malaysia.

Roshaimizam Suhaimi is a senior lecturer at the Academy of Contemporary Islamic Studies, UiTM, Pulau Pinang. He holds a PhD in Contemporary Islamic Studies, a Master of Education, and a Bachelor of Shariah. His scholarly expertise centres on Islamic commercial law, Shariah-compliant e-commerce, and the modern application of Islamic jurisprudence in commercial transactions. An active researcher, he has published extensively on online sales contracts and regulatory compliance, bridging classical legal frameworks with emerging digital business practices.

Sharifah Raihan Syed Jaafar is a lecturer at the Center for Research in Language and Linguistics, Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, UKM. She holds a PhD in Linguistics from Lancaster University and an MA in Linguistics from UKM. Her research interests include theoretical phonology and morphology, as well as their interface. Her research covers both standard and non-standard varieties of Malay, as well as other languages that exhibit similar phenomena.

Shariffah Nuridah Aishah Syed Nong Mohamad is a senior lecturer at the Faculty of Law and International Relations, UniSZA. She holds a PhD from UM and a Master of Law (LL.M.) from UKM. She joined UniSZA in 1998 and has been actively involved in teaching, research and administration since. Her research interests include child law, family law, Islamic law studies, environmental law and human rights issues.

Siti Noor Hafizah Mohamed Sharif is a senior lecturer in the History Section, School of Humanities, USM. She holds a Bachelor of Education (Honours) in History, MA and a PhD in Southeast Asian History from USM. Her research interests include Malaysia's socioeconomic history, particularly colonial policies, economic development and social issues. She is also interested in Malay and indigenous history.

Sity Daud is a Professor of Political Economy at the Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, UKM. She obtained her BA (Hons) in Social Sciences, majoring in Sociology and Politics, from Flinders University, South Australia, and an MSc in Politics from the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS), University of London. She then pursued her PhD in Development Science at UKM, conducting a comparative study of the Malaysian and Japanese developmentalist states.

Wong Sing Yun is a senior lecturer at the Faculty of Business, Economics and Accountancy, UMS, Malaysia. She holds a PhD in Planning and Development Economics and a Master's degree in Economics from UMS. Her research interests encompass development planning and policy, demographic economics, sustainable economic development and growth, and socioeconomic development. She was appointed Lead Impact Evaluator for Food Security Projects (East Malaysia) under the APPGM-SDG.

Yee Mun Chin is an associate professor in the Faculty of Creative Industries, UTAR and Director of the Tun Tan Cheng Lock Institute of Social Studies. He holds a PhD in Social Psychology from Universiti Putra Malaysia and MA in Sociology from UM. His research interests focus on ethnic relations, ethnic politics and Malaysian Chinese studies.

Yumasdaleni is a senior researcher at the Center for the Study of Religion and Belief, Badan Riset dan Inovasi Nasional (BRIN), Indonesia. Her research focuses on religion, social inclusion, education and community resilience. She has also conducted research on the educational experiences of migrant workers' children from Kerinci. Her work contributes to evidence-based policies, educational equity and inclusive social development.